whealthy9

whealthy9 5:12 PM
i did! i used it immediately but havent opened it up again since. i'm not sure how to use it

Mar 9

lildeebs 4:17 PM
Ooh!

Let me send you a guide on how to use it: https://www.instagram.com/p/DVQHObskvSc/?utm_source=ig_web_copy_link&igsh=MzRlODBiNWFlZA==

First, use the app to plant your intentions for the day!

whealthy9 4:25 PM
thanks for sending that over. I think its because I was able to make my first plant to bloom in one sitting within a few minutes and then I didn't have anyting else to do.

i opened it again when you messaged me the other day and i didnt see anyting new or different

lildeebs 4:26 PM
Oh I see!! The idea I wanted was for users to plant new intentions daily or whenever you wish to manifest

Would a home widget or a reminder be useful for you to do a 'check-in'?

whealthy9 4:27 PM
probably!

lildeebs 4:28 PM
Amazing hehe

I'm working on that

Lmk what else would actly make you want to use?

whealthy9 4:36 PM
:)

i think part of it for me is the scale of the intention. when i think about manifestation i usually think about bigger life shifts like financial stability, housing, big goals etc. so when the plant bloomed pretty quickly it felt nice but also kinda felt like i already finished the main thing in one sitting lol maybe something where you keep nurturing the same intention over time or see progress toward bigger goals would make me come back more often. i do think the plant blooming is really cute though i liked that part also i have undiagnosed adhd so i get bored kinda easily 😅 i'm the type of person that will do something all at once and then never come back if it doesnt keep my attention

2 replies

lildeebs 4:43 PM
I see, thanks so much for the detailed feedback. Currently, I've actly improved the new version to split the manifestation into 4 stages (seed > sprout > growing > fully bloomed) and each day, you could only accomplish 1 stage under the